LETTERS DEPT.

THE SINPIPER

I rarely read MAD, but after reading "The Sinpiper," I must write to commend you. It was the greatest piece of modern social satire I've ever seen. I hope your magazine survives long enough to print this letter.

Rod Howell
Alvin, Texas

Many of my fellow MAD readers inform me that I simply must see the movie before I can enjoy one of your movie satires. I do not always find this true. Take, for example, "The Sinpiper." I had not seen the movie, nor heard much about it. But Larry Siegel's excellent (and ludicrous) writing told me what kind of a shallow, over-worked movie it was; and I could also see the type of audience it was aimed at. In my opinion, Mr. Siegel ranks high among the great movie reviewers of today.

Jim Feyler
Sunnyvale, Calif.

I wish I could find a way to say how great MAD is. Anything that can make my mother (a stiff-laced school teacher) crack-up the way "The Sinpiper" did must be great. It was both deep and funny, ridiculous and sublime. You must be doing something right!

Mary Beth Clifford
Sheepshead Bay, N.Y.

MASTERS OF MEDIOCRITY

Congratulations on a fine, outspoken article. "Masters of Mediocrity" hits our institutions of higher learning (?) right where it hurts—in their dull, conformist, paternalism glands.

Michael Meier
Corpus Christi, Texas

It is my considered opinion that your "College Programs To Develop Masters of Mediocrity" should be required reading for all College Professors and Deans.

Joe Clarke, Jr.
Lefors, Texas

STATEMENT OF CIRCULATION

You made a dreadful error in your "Statement of Circulation" in the March issue (No. 101). Entry F: "spoiled after printing", which was erroneously listed as 464,398 copies, should have been 2,271,244 copies. Mainly, the total amount you printed!

Ronald Slusky
Columbia University, N. Y.

CHUCK CHUCKLES

Each issue of MAD is a refreshing and hilarious personal experience, even when the subject matter is Chuck Connors. To paraphrase Rudyard Kipling, "Though you've beaten me and flayed me, by the living Gawd that made me, every time it's really paid me—to read your crazy Mad-gazine."

Chuck Connors
Hollywood, Calif.

KNIGHT IN SHINING ARMOR

Congratulations! MAD is stronger than dirt!

Mrs. Rosemary Wilson
Mobile, Alabama

FALLS FOR MAD

As you can see by the enclosed photo, we are five average, conservative young entertainers who enjoy reading your "ultra-conservative" magazine. We sincerely wish you continued success with your unique brand of "insane sanity".

VOYAGE TO SEE THE BOTTOM

I just finished reading "Voyage to See What's on the Bottom" (No. 101) and found it delightful. I am a great fan of the show, and especially David Hedison—"Leak" to you. The article was very funny and extremely well done. I have enjoyed your satires of TV shows in the past, and you haven't disappointed me with this one. On behalf of all "Voyage" fans, please accept our thanks and keep up the good work.

Linda La Rosa
West Hempstead, N.Y.

You morons have really done it! You've spoiled my favorite TV show for me by doing a satire of it. I'm talking about that wonderful show, "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea", which you completely tore apart. Another flop for MAD!

Clifford Wilson
Somerville, N. J.

Many thanks for MAD's version of our television offering, "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea." Both Richard Baschart and I were greatly amused by it, and our feeling is: if you can't laugh at yourself, you're in serious trouble. Agree? My belated best wishes to MAD upon its 100th Anniversary. May you long continue to keep the world laughing.

David Hedison

HMMMMM!

Congratulations on your latest triumph, "Letters We Could Sure Do Without" (No. 101). It is with this article that MAD finally soars to new heights in the field of humor. A masterpiece! Let us see more of this first-rate material in the future.

VICTOR IS "HOOKED"

This evening, as I entered my dressing room to make-up and dress for a performance as Captain Hook in the Valley Music Theater production of "Peter Pan", in Salt Lake City, I spotted the 100th Anniversary Issue of MAD. Needless to say, I cancelled the performance in order to fully enjoy the experience. I have not yet missed a single issue of your magazine, which is interesting when one considers that I have had a good education, and am known as a man of taste. At any rate, I read the publication from lid to lid and was, as usual, delighted with its perceptiveness, rich humor, and hearty back-stabbing poisonous and thoroughly base contents. "Hack, Hack, Sweet Has-Been" I found to be in the best MAD tradition: rude, cruel, and terribly funny. I especially liked the way you pictured and titled me. I was thoroughly entertained; and so was my attorney. He laughed louder than I did. I think he is sending you a registered letter telling you how much he enjoyed it.

Victor Buono
Encino, Calif.

BIO GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION

As a student of Biology, I can say that MAD occupies an ecological niche in our society which, until its publication, was unfilled.

Tom Johnson
Williams College
Williamstown, Mass.

IT'S GREEK TO US!

You may already be aware of this, but on page 33 of "Classical Rhetoric for the Modern Student" by Edward P. J. Corbett, the following statement appears: "Today, the eighteenth-century brand of satire seems to be enjoying a revival, especially among young people of college age. Whether it is the satire in MAD Magazine or the satire of the stand-up comedians who reach their audience through television or records, all of the techniques have their roots in Aristotelian rhetoric."

Jan A. Sainsbury
Pocatello, Idaho

COWPOKES FUN

At a recent Horse Show in this fair city, the major attraction (apart from the horses) was that well-known TV personality, "James Droopy", the "Virginian" — alias James Drury, the "Virginian." It was my job to interview "James" for radio, and I asked him his reaction to your satire of his TV show. I thought you might be interested in the enclosed photo of his response.

Philip Clarke
WJDX—WLBT-TV
Jackson, Miss.

BORDERLINE CASE

Look what happened to me on the Israeli-Lebanese border. I was standing there, peacefully minding my own business, when an Arab snuck up behind the sign to share the pure ecstasy of reading MAD. I'm glad to see that someone has discovered the way to bring peace between Israelis and Arabs.

Uri Alony
Tel Aviv, Israel

MAD ECONOMICS

The humor in MAD is a priceless example of brilliant satire. Let's see now... Since the price of a commodity is based upon how much it's worth, and it's priceless, it therefore must be worthless! So like I said, the humor in MAD is a priceless example—

THE AGONY AND

This is the story of the most dramatic single event in the life of the immortal Michael Angelo, the supreme

In 1958, Michael Angelo was commissioned to decorate the lobby of the Rococo-Hilton Hotel in Miami Beach. Note the rhinestone-studded staircase, the two-ton chandelier, the 412 potted palms. Later on, we'll show you how this same run-down lobby looked after Michael Angelo redecorated it.

Notice the inimitable Angelo touch in this, his celebrated Elvis Presley Chapel, at Hollywood's Forest Grass Cemetery. In 1959 Mike Angelo was presented with a special award by The California Medical Society . . . for shocking 18 corpses back to life when their coffins were opened in this room.

But now, the story of the greatest artistic achievement in the life of Michael Angelo is about to unfold on

There goes Julius Pope, the Warrior-Restaurateur!

How come they call him the Warrior-Restaurateur!

Because besides owning the fabulous "Casa Julius Italian Restaurant," he also happens to be a scrappy Middleweight Prize Fighter. In fact, after every fight, he rides by in his limousine and tosses some of his purse money to the under-privileged people of the neighborhood.

So how come that guy is tossing money to Julius Pope?

Julius threw tonight's fight!

interior decorator of his time. But before looking at the man, let's examine some of his masterpieces . . .

Here is the world-famous showplace headquarters of Mafia Board Chairman Nino Bombarelli, decorated by the talented Michael Angelo in 1961. Notice how the resourceful artist has used lights, shapes and color to completely disguise the fact that this is actually Bombarelli's prison cell.

This master bedroom of Herman Draydel was decorated by Mr. Angelo in 1964. Notice, in the warm white decor, Angelo's intense love for his fellow man. Nobody loved his fellow man more than Mike Angelo—which may be getting personal, but this is not really unusual for an Interior Decorator.

this screen. And ironically, it is the story of a dedicated interior decorator who didn't want to paint!

I don't know—the restaurant still doesn't look right for Columbus Day. It needs some—

Who made these sketches? What a magnificent artist!

The Interior Decorator you hired last week—Michael Angelo!

Why did he leave his sketches for the Palace of Versailles on my desk?

The Palace of Versailles he would make lavish! These are his sketches for your Men's Lounge!

Did you want to see me. Mr. Pope? I'm very busy. I'm designing all the sinks in the Men's Lounge like the Fountain of Trevi. Then, customers can not only tip the attendant by throwing coins in the fountain, but they can make wishes as well . . . like wishing the attendant would disappear!

Forget the Men's Lounge, Mike! Come out into the Dining Room with me. I've got another assignment for you!

Mike, next Columbus Day, 500 Sons of Italy will be here at the Casa Julius for a big banquet, and I want the place to look magnificent. You see that big bare ceiling up there? I want it filled with the ultimate in Italian-American Restaurant decor. I want paintings of Mount Vesuvius, the Grand Canal of Venice with 22 gondolas, the Leaning Tower of Pisa, the Applan Way, the Piazza San Marco with its 4,568 pigeons, the Bay of Naples and ...

You want me to paint? ME?? Michael Angelo? But I'm not a painter! I'm an Interior Decorator! NEVER! And I warn you ... one more word on the subject and I'll mince right out of here!

Connie, we're old friends. I decorated your apartment. Now, Julius Pope wants me, the great Interior Decorator, to paint his restaurant ceiling! Can you imagine that? Well, I turned him down cold and I'm leaving for Fire Island!

Mike, my woman's intuition tells me that you're afraid to accept the challenge of something new!

Really? Well, Connie, my woman's intuition tells me you're wrong!

Oh, Mike, Mike ... I love you, you big crazy honey bear of an Interior Decorator! Marry me!

I'm fond of you, Connie, but I can't love you! I can't love any woman! You see, God gave me a talent for Decorating. Whatever love I have is all here, in my hands!

Then I'll marry your hands!

You won't be happy together! I've got very selfish pinkies!

All right, Mr. Pope, I've changed my mind! I've decided to accept the challenge! I'll paint your ceiling! But I want $5000 ...

I'll give you $500!

Make it $2000? $525.

$1000? $550.

$540? $500.

$475?

$450, and not one penny less!

It's a deal!

I have a sneaky feeling I could use a Business Manager!

The Leaning Tower of Pisa—The Grand Canal of Venice—Mt. Vesuvius—ECCCH! Every Italian-American Restaurant in New York has these things painted on their walls or ceilings. I've got to get away from this dull, uninspired trash for a while. I think I'll sashay uptown to my favorite 3rd Avenue Bar.

... so I was lying on the sand at Fire Island when I got an inspiration from a cloud-formation ...

Get off my stomach!

You see, on this part of the ceiling we paint this, and on this part ...

Get off my stomach!

... we paint this ... and over here, we paint this ...

No, no! I see a panoramic shot in that space there!

Four ... Five ... No, I see these frescoes up there! Six ... SEVEN ...

Get off my stomach!

I'm going ahead with my new inspiration! The ceiling will be magnificent!!

Get back on my stomach! Get back on my stomach!

When will you make an end?

When I'm finished!

When will you be finished?

When I run out of paint!

When will you run out of paint?

When I'm done!

When will you be done?

Aw, c'mon, Mr. Pope! This is getting a little ridiculous!

When will you make an end?

Right now! I'm finished! So shut up, already!

Magnificent! I can't believe that you got the inspiration for this immortal work from a cloud, Mike!

It's true, Mr. Pope. When I looked up and saw that Hero Sandwich on the ceiling of the world, I knew that what your ceiling needed was an Italian Hero, too! But not just one! I saw a magnificent panorama! I saw the whole spectrum of our beloved 20th Century Italian-American Heritage! And, there it is ...

Look! There's Frank Sinatra! And Dean Martin! And Publisher Generoso Pope! And there's Fabian, and Joe DiMaggio and Don Ameche! And there's Ernest and Julio Gallo! Rocky Graziano, and Tony and Sally DeMarco! There's Bernadette Castro ... next to her Italian Provincial Convertible Couch! Look! Perry Como!

And Salvatore Valducci! Who's Salvatore Valducci? He's only the Bocci Champ of Mulberry Street! Aside from that, he's a complete unknown! There's Louis Prima! Sam Butera and the Witnesses! And Connie Francis! And MAD Editor, Jerry De Fuccio! And look there! It's the Seven Santini Brothers!

Fantastic job, Mike! But you may have to make some changes! Changes?! In my Masterpiece? Changes?! In my Immortal Life's Work?! Why?? WHY?? Gee, haven't you heard? I sold the restaurant! The new owner is converting it into a Jewish Delicatessen!

Hey, guys! Don't you wish you could grow up fast? Like—tomorrow, and be a father so you can have your turn at making your kid's life miserable? Well, not so fast, fellah! Don't think your Old Man has it made! In fact, he's really gotten the lousy end of the stick! How come? Well, between the time he was a kid and the time he became a parent, something terrible happened . . . mainly, "Child Psychology"! Years ago, a kid had to worry about his parents' feelings. Now, when he's old enough to get his licks, he has to bow to the Psychology books that tell him: "Consider the child, above all." That's why we say:

...When It Comes To "Report Cards"

As a boy, Irving Blootz would shudder whenever he brought home a bad Report Card. It meant he would be giving up fun time to concentrate on schoolwork.

Today, a Father must take total responsibility for his son's performance in school. So Irving still shudders at the sight of a Bad Report card. It means he'll be giving up "golf-time" to bone up on the "New Math" so he can concentrate on helping Junior with his schoolwork—if it's convenient for Junior.

...When It Comes To "Reading Material"

As a kid, Jeff Landy had to hide his girlie magazines from his parents because he knew that if they ever saw him with one, they'd think he was a dirty little boy.

Because it's not "healthy" to put too much emphasis on sex, Jeff still hides his girlie magazines, because if his kids ever saw him with one, they'd think he was a dirty old man.

...When It Comes To "Father-Son Relationship"

Steve Cowznofski's Dad was always too busy for him. When the Old Man wasn't working, he'd never pay attention to Steve. He'd have fun with his cronies.

Since his childhood rejection left such scars on his psyche, Steve decided never to be too busy for his kids. He just didn't reckon on the possibility that they might be too busy for him. And after all, what kind of a welcome can a Father really expect when he comes home from the office empty-handed?

...When It Comes To "Hobby Money"

When Ralph Kipness was a little boy, his passion was "Stamp Collecting." To get the money he needed to buy a Stamp Album, Ralph took a job after school as a delivery boy.

Today, our over-protective society decrees that kids must be sheltered from the cruel world of economic realities. So when Ralph's boy began his collection of Rare Coins, Ralph took a second job rather than deny Junior that mint-condition 1871-0 Silver Dollar that sells for $155.

...When It Comes To "Athletic Achievements"

Whenever Bob Mushblech was benched during a ball game, he would suffer terrible embarrassment and long for a quick, painless death. After all, what son wanted his father to think he was a failure?

In today's "Child-Oriented" society, a father is judged by his son's accomplishments. So Bob suffers terrible embarrassment and longs for a quick, painless death when his son sits out a game. After all, what man wants his friends to think he's a failure?

...When It Comes To "Going To The Movies"

Whenever he went to the movies, Ken Hickey would have to see the pictures his parents wanted to see. He'd even make believe that he was really enjoying the films because he couldn't hurt their feelings.

Today, when Ken goes to the movies, he has to see the pictures his son wants to see. And since he mustn't do anything to make his son doubt his set of values, Ken even makes believe he enjoys the films—which makes him a better actor than Jerry Lewis.

...When It Comes To "Having His Own Room"

As a boy, Lou Greppse was forced to share a room with his four brothers. And so, he couldn't wait to grow up, get married, buy a home and finally have a room of his own.

Because Psychiatrists claim that locking the parents' door might symbolize rejection to an impressionable youngster, Lou now has a room of his own with a steady stream of little intruders trooping through. They include his own four kids, their thirty friends, and two strangers who were just passing by.

...When It Comes To "Family Conversation"

Whenever his parents were engaged in conversation, Phil Finster would have to sit quietly and listen—bored stiff. He couldn't interject anything because children were supposed to be "seen and not heard".

Psychology books tell us: "It is essential that parents show an interest in their children." So Phil sits like death itself while his son goes on endlessly about his pal's ant collection. Today, it's parents who are supposed to be "seen and not heard".

TEN-FORTY OR FIGHT DEPT.

The other day, as our Accountant was filling out our Income Tax Return, we (No, idiot, we at MAD don't send in a Joint Return—that's the Editorial "we"! ) got to thinking. The United States Government is not supposed to favor any one particular class or group, and yet that is exactly what is happening when it comes to Accountants. Because of the impossibly complicated Income Tax Forms, hundreds of thousands of Accountants are employed to fill out Returns, while hundreds of thousands of others are kept busy examining them in the Internal Revenue Service. And this, we feel, is unfair! It is unfair to guarantee the members of one profession an income, when there are so many other occupations and professions who are in much greater need. With this in mind, we offer:

SCHEDULE M: MEDICAL EXPENSES CLAIMED AS DEDUCTIONS

In the space below, list all Deductions claimed as Medical Expenses using an acceptable Basic Teaching Method. (In other words, explain them in PRIMER form.):

Beauty Used To Be The Beast

See the Taxpayer's wife.
She has a pretty face.
But it was not always pretty.
It used to have a big bulging nose.
It used to have a big bulging chin.
It used to have big bulging jowls.
It used to have big bulging eye-bags.
But nothing bulges anymore.
Except one thing:
Her Doctor's Bank Account

WIFE'S PLASTIC SURGERY: $4500.00

Talk Is Not Cheap

See the boy.
He is the Taxpayer's boy.
He has a nice personality.
He also has a rotten personality.
That means he has two personalities.
But there is only room enough in his head
for one personality.
So his head is very crowded.
In fact, it is stuffed.
Will it burst?
Burst, burst, burst!
No, because he goes to a Special Doctor.
This Doctor makes heads smaller.
Without even touching them.
Isn't that clever?

SON'S HEADSHRINKER: $2900.00

But we won't.
Plastic Surgery is stretching it a bit.

SCHEDULE X: EXPLANATION FOR FILING OF LATE RETURN

In the space below, write a COMEDY MONOLOGUE explaining why your 1965 Tax Return has been filed beyond the April 15th deadline (and make it funny!):

A funny thing happened to me on the way to filing my 1965 Tax Return. On April 15th, as I rushed up to my corner mailbox, I was startled to see a man crying softly as he posted what I presumed was his own Tax Return.

"There's nothing certain in this world but death and taxes," I laughed.

"Funny you should say that," he answered grimly, "because I'm not paying my taxes. In fact, I don't intend to pay my taxes at all. The letter I just mailed was to my parents, informing them of the death of my wife and three children in a fire that destroyed my home."

"You're kidding," I said. "You mean to say you have no intention of filing a Tax Return?"

"That's right!" he snapped, and jumping into his car, he sped away.

Well, this statement so unnerved me that I couldn't let it go unexplained. I quickly hailed a cab and followed the man to a suburban address, where I found him standing and staring at the charred remains of what was once a fashionable residence.

"I couldn't help wondering why you have no intention of paying your taxes," I told him. "Is it because you have no income?"

"Not at all," he replied. "In fact, I have a very good income. I'm a catcher for the Los Angeles Dodgers."

"Oh! Then you're a TAX DODGER!" I quipped with rapier wit.

When I came to, several days later, I noticed that in all the excitement, I had neglected to mail my own Tax Return. You might say that, in attempting to catch a DODGER, I had failed to DODGE a CATCHER.

And that is why my Return is late.

Hmmm! They don't seem so bad!

Hey! She doesn't seem so bad!

Now, I realize that the talk I just gave was a long-winded explanation of a complicated phase of Social Studies—so are there any questions?

Oh, good! Someone has a question! That shows you were paying attention! What would you like to know, Arnold?

Miss Hoolihan, do you know what's on the Lunchroom Menu today?

The first word in today's Spelling Test is "appreciate"—

The second word is "mechanical"—

The third word is "representative"—

Beg pardon, what was that last word?

"REPRESENTATIVE"

Repre— what?

REPRESENTATIVE!!

Could you spell it?

Ma, can I wear make-up?

Absolutely not!

But everybody— simply everybody at school is wearing make-up!

They are?! I swear, every year it starts earlier! And the school allows it? The first thing tomorrow, I'm going to speak to your Principal about this!

No, Ma! Don't make a thing out of it! Besides, it isn't really everybody! Just most of the girls! Anyway, a lot of them! Well, some of them!

Keep going!

Carolyn Bookbinder!

Terry! What did you do to your hair? It looks terrible!!

I know! I could kill myself!

I'd like to go find a hole somewhere and crawl in and die, I'm so miserable!

But what happened to it to get it into that disgusting condition?

My mother made me comb it! —sob—

Boy, what if my teacher, Miss Starz, came out of the building one afternoon, and a bunch of hoods from this school jumped her, and I just happened to come along at the time ...

And I gave one a karate blow right in the gizzard, and I gave another a left uppercut to the jaw, and took two more and banged their heads together, and flipped the last one over my shoulder, and they all lay on the ground looking silly ...

And she came over to me like I was a hero, and she was grateful and everything, and put her arms around me and kissed me and everything ...

Boy, then she would pass me!

Gee ... Richie and Loretta really like each other!

WHY ME?? Everybody else was doing it!

Because I caught YOU! And for that, you're going to be punished. You're staying an hour after school!

I'll show these kids they can't push me around! I'll punish them every time they try it! Punishment! That's the only thing they understand!

Look at him, smiling at me! He'll be laughing out of the other side of his face by the time I'm through filling out this report on him. And when this hour is over, he's gonna know who's been punished ...

Mainly ME! I had to miss that Cocktail Party I wanted to go to for this!

"You call this a report card?"

You call this a report card?

"Look at these marks! Why can't you be like Mary Jane Reddington and bring home all A's, too?"

C... C... C+... C! Maybe if you studied as hard as Mary Jane Reddington, you'd bring home all A's like she brings home!

"You're going to stop playing that stupid guitar and get down to your school work!"

No more fooling around with that lousy electric guitar, you hear? You're gonna get down to school work instead, understand?

"Did it ever occur to you that maybe I'm doing the best I can? At least I'm not failing!"

Whaddya think—I'm not doing the best I can? For cryin' out loud, at least I'm not failing!

Some of my classmates are coming over. For goodness sake, act nice! Straighten up the house! Dress decent! And please, PLEASE! DON'T SAY ANYTHING STUPID!

What's with her?

At this age, every kid is ashamed of her parents, no matter what they say or do! So for her sake, let's be especially nice!

Ellen Finder, Connie Kramer, this is my Mother and Father ...

Grunt—
Mmph—

How do you do?

Pleased to meet you!

OOOOOHH! I'm dying of shame! There they go—saying something stupid again.

What kind of way is that to dress?

Which kinda way? This kinda way? All the kids dress like this at school.

That's ridiculous! Must you conform to the group? Haven't you got a mind of your own? Can't you be an individual?

They'd think I was some kind of nut! I wouldn't be accepted!

Hey, what kind of way is that to dress?

Which kind of way? This kind of way? All the men dress like this at the office!

That's ridiculous! Must you conform to the group? Haven't you got a mind of your own? Can't you be an individual?

They'd think I was some kind of ...
AH, SHADDUP! KIDS NOWADAYS HAVE SUCH BIG MOUTHS!

Are you serious? Those are "kid shoes"! I want high heels!

You know, Sam, she's right! She's ready for high heels!

How do you like that? My little girl, wearing high heels already! Next comes High School, then College, then she'll be getting married, and then she'll make me a Grandfather, and then it'll be time for me to retire! Gee, where have all the years gone?

How do you like them, Daddy?

Better leave your father alone. He's feeling very old and very sorry for himself.

Well, how do you like them, Mom?

Better leave me alone, too! I'm feeling the same way!

MOORE-McMOORMICK SHIPYARDS, INC.

"There are good ships, and there are bad ships . . . but there's no ship like a 'Moore-McMoormick Ship'!"

ON THE RIVER AT 55th STREET, OLDPORT NEWS, VIRGINIA

Congratulations!

You have just purchased one of the world's finest passenger liners!

Your liner has been constructed of the finest SANFORIZED metals, and shrinkage is guaranteed to be less than 1%.

Your liner features the newest and simplest steering systems:

- (1) Push the handle forward, and your ship will go forward.
- (2) Push the handle backward, and your ship will go backward.
- (3) Push the handle sideways, and you bust off the handle.

Your liner will give you years of satisfaction if you just follow these few simple hints:

- Store in a cool, damp place. The ocean would be ideal.
- Do not attempt to pass your liner under low bridges.
- Do not attempt to pass your liner over low bridges.
- Avoid icebergs.
- Protect the hull from rough abrasives such as scouring powder, sandpaper, steel wool and large jagged rocks.
- Do not operate liner with its sea cocks (drain plugs) open. (Operating liner with its sea cocks open voids warranty—and gets everything else soaked, besides!)

WARRANTY

Your liner has been designed, built and tested by men who have spent years at sea (or have, at least, hung around the docks a lot) before leaving our shipyards. Should it become defective during use, remove the passengers and return it to us. This warranty does not apply in cases where the liner was used on land, or in water less than fifteen feet deep.

BIG BĀBY MISSILE & ROCKET MANUFACTURING CO.

"When you reach for the stars, reach for a 'Big Baby'!"

PINK SANDS PROVING GROUNDS

ALAMAGOGOO, NEW MEXICO

Dear proud New Rocket and/or Missile Owner:

Congratulations! You have just purchased the finest rocket available for your pad! No special care or handling is required for your "Big Baby." Merely treat it as you would any other multi-million dollar object.

An occasional dusting and waxing will keep your "Big Baby" rocket gleaming in the sunlight—so important in these days of "live" TV coverage.

Your new rocket is so simple to operate, any genius from sixty to sixty-six can launch it.

Warranty

Your "Big Baby" is Warranted for 500,000 miles or 5 hours—whichever comes first, and is guaranteed "waterproof" as long as case, fins and nose-cone remain intact.

Should your new rocket prove defective during the warranty Period, return all the pieces to the factory in the enclosed brown paper bag.

Should your new rocket require service during the period prior to launching, return it to the factory along with $250,000 (to cover postage and handling). Do NOT send your "Big Baby" back to the factory under its own power!

CAUTION: BEFORE LAUNCHING, BE SURE THAT THE "POINTY" PART OF THE ROCKET FACES "UP"!

This tag applies to "Big Baby" Model #678 (stenciled U.S.A.) and "Big Baby" Model #679 (stenciled U.S.S.R.) only. With all other models, you take your chances.

STURDY-BUILT-DAMS, INC.

"Hold Your Water With A 'Sturdy-Built Dam'!"

Congratulations! You have just purchased one of the world's best dams (packed in what is probably one of the world's biggest boxes)!

Unpack carefully, and make sure that you have all of the following:

- 1 Dam
- 1 Hydro-Electric Generator
- 1 Instruction Manual
- 500,000 full-color picture post-cards (for tourist souvenirs).

Be sure to place your new "Sturdy-Built Dam" in the proper location, mainly between two mountains and in front of the water you plan to dam up. Please note that this water should be on side "A", passing through "B" and cascading down spillway "C" as in Picture 1.

PICTURE 2.

If unit is reversed, as in Picture 2, your "Sturdy-Built Dam" will still operate, but it WILL NOT look pretty like on the full-color picture postcards.

Your new Dam will operate efficiently on fresh water, salt water, and in severe drought areas, on gin.

Clean often with steel wool to avoid that tell-tale "ring around the Dam."

The unit you have just purchased was carefully engineered by "Sturdy-Built" to give you years of trouble-free service. If any problem should arise, our whole dam company is solidly behind you.

This Animal Is Covered With

DO NOT REMOVE THIS TAG UNDER PENALTY OF LAW

ANIMALS FOR THE MOVIES, INC.

Dear Discriminating Motion Picture Producer:

The Gorilla you have just purchased will give you years of satisfactory service, and allow you to turn out hundreds of Grade-B Movies.

No special care is needed for your Gorilla. Treat it as you would any other common vicious Man-Killer.

For best results, your Gorilla should be given a Factory Check-Up every five thousand bananas.

Wash your Gorilla once a month. (And more often, if you plan to be eating on the set.)

Dry-Cleaning or Ironing your Gorilla will result in severe damage... to you, from a very angry Gorilla.

With care and patience, you should be able to teach your new Gorilla many tricks, like "Fetch a woman," "Climb a building," "Catch an airplane," "Tear down an 'E!' ", etc.

Guarantee

Your Gorilla is guaranteed to turn in fine acting performances for a period of 5 years. (This Guarantee is VOID if Gorilla is allowed to co-star with Troy Donahue, Frankie Avalon or Sandra Dee.) Your Gorilla will grow at the rate of one foot per month, so it is imperative that you DO NOT attempt to return him in the original shipping carton should he prove unsatisfactory. Simply pin a note to his chest (very carefully) explaining what is wrong with him, and give him bus fare to the nearest Factory Authorized Service. You may wish to insure him, since we cannot be responsible for Gorillas lost in transit.

The Face On The Town Square Walk

(With apologies to H. Antoine D'Arcy's "The Face On The Barroom Floor")

Illustrated by: Jack Davis

Written by: Tom Koch

'Twas summertime at Newport Beach; a motley crowd was there
Of bearded motorcycle bums, while cops patrolled the square.

The local shops were closed up tight with shutters battened down,
For word had spread from mouth to mouth: "The cycling mob's in town!"

Their jackets were of leather, all inscribed with fearful names:
"The Flying Wheels," "Hell's Angels" and "The Roaring Vulgar Dames."
The beer flowed free as each bum spoke with pride of his machine;
Then up the darkened street, a Honda sputtered on the scene.

Upon it sat a vagabond, his face alive with fear
As rowdies soon surrounded him to curse his bike and jeer.
"He's come to share his toy," smirked one, and gave the wretch a poke,
While others kicked the Honda's tires and chortled at the joke.

A flood of jibes the vagrant took with stoical good grace
Although he twitched and thus revealed his hatred of this place.
Across the square, the cops foresaw the makings of a fight
And, running true to form, they quickly vanished in the night.

"I'd gladly drink to one and all, and toast you with good cheer;
But first, of course, someone would have to offer me a beer."
The vagrant's friendly manner caught the bullies by surprise;
The can of beer he sought they gave him, right between the eyes.

"'Tis quite a yarn," he mused aloud, "And yet I swear it's true
That I was once a speed-crazed thug like every one of you."
The rowdies gladly paid his price this wondrous tale to hear.
While one pried open-wide his mouth, another poured the beer.

Thus left alone, the wretch joined in the fun the others led,
Pretending not to notice when they clubbed him on the head.
"You all have hearts of gold," he said, while sinking to his knees,
"To welcome such a slob as I whose bike is Japanese.

He smacked his lips in sheer delight and said, "I'll tell you how
I came to be the Honda fink who stands before you now.
You might not guess I ever wore a leather coat of black
Emblazoned with a gory skull and crossbones on the back.

"My humble thanks," the stranger said. "This makes us buddies now.
I'll drink to that once I've dislodged this beer can from my brow."
Then pleased at having made new friends, he lolled upon the ground,
And pledged he'd tell his story if they'd serve another round.

"I may not seem the type who'd grow long hair and scraggly beard;
Who'd clobber cops at beach resorts while others stood and cheered;
Or stop my bike to kick a child and leave him black and blue.
But once I played such manly games. The words I speak are true.

"I left a note for Mommy and I pinned it to my bed;
Then met this chick at Joe's Saloon, and out of town we sped.
We raced to every rally that two cycling nuts could find;
She drove with throttle open wide while I hung on behind.

"I see you smirk that one so meek as I should make the claim
That I was once a ruthless rat who loved a ruthless dame;
And even dared to hope that such a raunchy chick loved me;
For though I lacked both looks and cash, I'd learned brutality.

"I'll tell you how it all began, my brutal rise to fame.
You'll find the story far from dull; it started with a dame.
She owned a Harley-Davidson with pipes of gleaming chrome.
Small wonder that I fell in love and ran away from home.

"I learned the joy of rioting from members of your flock;
The thrill of pride that comes from felling widows with a rock.
Yes, I was once a rotten tough who bellowed dirty jokes,
And did my bit to rid the world of law-abiding folks.

"My world was filled with many dreams in those dear days long past.
Then at a summer lake resort, they all were shattered fast.
For there my dame soon spied a bum more sloven than the rest,
With matted hair and vulgar tongue, part anthropoid at best.

VAARROOM

"Through all that day, her hand in his, they cased the lakeside town.
She helped him loot the liquor store; they burned a Rest Home down.
That night, I heard her Harley roar and knew the pair had flown.
My love was gone and I was left to face the fuzz alone.

"Though now I wander o'er the land, I can't erase from view
The mental picture of the only love I ever knew.
And if one of you surly lads might have a piece of chalk,
I'll gladly sketch each lovely feature here upon this walk."

The vagrant crouched and eyed his work; then gazed at those above.
"So now you know," he said, "How I became a fool in love.
No life have I without that bike!" he cried out in torment,
And forward fell to leave his face imprinted in cement.

"The cops surveyed the wreckage, crumpled bodies and the like;
Then judged me the first cycling bum they'd caught who had no bike.
My sentence served, I then received what convict cyclists do:
A Honda and ten bucks in cash to start my life anew.

The vagabond, on hands and knees, transformed the gray concrete
Into a thing of beauty as his sketch became complete.
The thugs all pulled out hankies and gave misty eyes a wipe.
What graceful sweeping handlebars! What gently curving pipe!

WRITER: DON EDWING

ABOUT FACE DEPT.

Do you know the difference between a "hypocrite" and a "liar"? Well, the liar knows that he's throwing the bull, but the hypocrite actually believes the bull that he's throwing. Confused? (If you answer "No", you're a liar. And if the Editor of this rag answers "No", he's a hypocrite!) So here we go again with another of those clever, amusing and popular (and there's a hypocritical statement if you ever read one!) Primers—designed to expose the hypocrites and hypocritical situations surrounding us these days:

The MAD HYPOCRITE PRIMER

Illustrated by Robert J. Clarke
Written by Stanley Hart

Chapter 1.

See the Man.
He is a Hypocrite.
He looks just like you and me.
Doesn't it make you wonder
About you and me?
This Hypocrite hates injustice.
He worries about equal rights for Minority Groups.
Right now, he is worrying about his new neighbors.
His new neighbors are members of a Minority Group.
They have just moved in.
They are looking for equal rights.
Of course, that's fine with him . . . BUT
He worries that they may be uncomfortable in this neighborhood.
He worries that they may suffer from prejudice in this neighborhood.
He hopes they will be happy in this neighborhood.
But he will never know.
Because he won't be in this neighborhood.
He is moving out!

Chapter 2.

See the Southern Congressman.
He is a Public Servant.
He is not like an ordinary servant.
An ordinary servant usually cleans up a mess.
The Southern Congressman says he loves Peace.
He loves Peace so much
That he is willing to send us to war to preserve it.
? ? ? ? ?
Do you know that Congressmen are exempt from the draft?
This Hypocrite votes millions of dollars for Foreign Aid.
He is happy to export Democracy to Undeveloped Nations.
He is happy to export Democracy anywhere
As long as it stays out of his home state!

Chapter 3.

See the kindly Doctors.
They are at an A.M.A. Convention.
The A.M.A. is a very moral organization.
It is concerned about people's freedom.
That is why it is against Medicare.
Medicare robs older people of their freedom
To choose the doctor they cannot afford to go to.
The A.M.A. feels that poor people
Are just as good as rich people.
This is true.
They're just not as healthy.
Each Doctor has taken an oath
To heal the sick and mend the infirm.
The oath hangs framed in each Doctor's office
Right above the radiator.
And like the radiator,
It doesn't work at night, either!

Chapter 4.

See the American Communist.
He became a Communist
Because he wanted to be different.
Now he looks forward to the day
When Communism takes over
And makes everybody the same.
Logic, logic, logic.
The Communist says he believes in Brotherly Love.
But don't argue or disagree with him,
Or he'll hate you.
This Hypocrite raves about ending injustice.
Of course, if injustice did end,
He would have nothing to rave about.
Wait! He could always rave about how great it is
To live in Russia, or China, or Cuba . . .
Come to think of it—
He really wouldn't have anything to rave about.

Chapter 7.

See the Philanthropist.
He gives lots of money away.
Why does he give lots of money away?
Does his conscience tell him to do it?
No, his Accountant tells him to do it.
The money he gives away is "Tax-Deductible."
His tax-deductible contributions
Support Museums and Symphony Orchestras.
If he gave the same money in taxes,
It would support Schools and Hospitals.
When this Hypocrite gives away money,
He gets his name in the newspapers.
No one gets his name in the newspapers
For paying his taxes!

Chapter 8.

See the Parent.
He has two teenage children.
He is very proud.
His son is a football hero.
He makes out like crazy with all the girls.
"That's my boy," beams Dad.
His daughter is popular, too.
But she is not even allowed to kiss a boy.
"That's my girl," glares Dad.
Dad gives his kids anything they want.
He never asks for thanks.
Is he selfless?
No, it's just his way
Of avoiding spending time with them
Without feeling guilty.

Chapter 5.

See the Funeral Orator.
He has an important mission.
It is his job
To make the mourners who feel bad
Feel worse.
He says such nice things about the Dear Departed.
Isn't it a shame that he never knew the Dear Departed?
Funeral Orators always say such nice things at funerals.
It makes you begin to feel that only nice people die.
Doesn't that raise a theological question in your mind?
I listen to the Funeral Orator say,
"He was a wonderful man."
"He was a devoted Husband and Father."
See the mourners.
See their shocked faces.
No wonder they are shocked.
The Dear Departed
Was a Woman!

Chapter 6.

See the Censor.
He reviews all the movies.
He makes sure that each movie
Contains nothing that will corrupt our morals.
Isn't it wonderful that seeing thousands of movies
Hasn't corrupted his morals?
The Censor saves us the task
Of deciding for ourselves
What is good for us
And what is bad for us.
HAPPY NEW YEAR, 1984!
The Censor protects people
Who are not as healthy-minded as he is,
Who are not as mature as he is,
And who haven't yet learned, as he has,
That SEX is DIRTY!

Chapter 9.

See the Courtroom.
See the Bookies and Prostitutes on trial.
They will be put away.
They will no longer contaminate
The society of decent, law-abiding citizens
Who use the services of Bookies and Prostitutes.
Everyone is equal under the law in the Courtroom.
See the first man. He is "Not Guilty".
See the second man. He is "Guilty".
Why is one man "Not Guilty" and the other man "Guilty"?
The first man can afford a good lawyer,
And the second man cannot.
The Philosopher who said, "Money cannot buy happiness,"
Never sat in a Courtroom.

Chapter 10.

See the lovely Park.
See the friendly sign.
It says "This is YOUR Park!"
Can you take a walk at night in your Park?
Not unless you would like to be buried in your Park.
See the Policeman on duty in your Park.
He has many things to do.
He makes sure that no one sits on the grass,
Or rides a bicycle, or plays ball, or has fun.
He is so busy, he doesn't have time
To stop the Muggers and Robbers and Assaulters.
What makes this YOUR Park?
You pay taxes to maintain it.

One Day In The "Chicken Coop"

Last season's TV ratings proved that the viewing public goes ape over shows that star either (1) a beautiful girl, (2) an off-beat private eye, or (3) preposterous characters who horse around with preposterous weapons originally dreamed up by Ian Fleming. Naturally, this season, TV's creative thinkers got the brilliant idea to combine all three of these sure-fire elements of success into one single show. The results? Sure-fire confusion in the form of the incredible (even for TV) . . .

HONEY WASTE

in this week's exciting episode:
"THIRTY MINUTES TO KILL"

The usual, Miss Waste . . . ?
Two quarts of buttermilk
and a pint of heavy cream?

Better leave an extra quart
of buttermilk, Mr. Kelso,
and a half-dozen eggs!

Down, Seymour!
Nice kitty-cat!
Down, boy . . .

Maybe I'd better come back when they're not busy working on a big assignment . . .

They're not working on an assignment now!
The judo and the ocelot are just a couple of unbelievable gimmicks we throw in so the audience won't notice that our stories are even more unbelievable!

And that's the caper? To get this suitcase
on Flight 207
for Hong Kong
no matter who tries to stop
us?

Sounds great. It always punches up the script
when we take on a shady assignment that could cost Honey her license.
But what's in the suitcase? Stolen gems?
Opium? A Sherman tank?

No—Underwear, shirts and socks! With all the tips you have to hand
out to get your luggage carried these days, I figured it would be cheaper to hire a
Private Eye to do it!

Scram, suppose you
carry the suitcase
while I wear a black
wig to disguise myself!

Why do you have to do the black wig disguise shtik
if I'm carrying the suitcase? Just go the way you are . . . as a blonde!

Idiot!
Going as a blonde is a
disguise, too!
Actually, I'm bald!

How could they be planning a caper when they don't even seem to be talking to each other?

That's how they always plan capers. She's got a radio transmitter hidden in her left eyebrow, and he's picking her up on the receiver imbedded in his cuff link. It's a stupid gimmick, but it distracts attention from the stupid dialogue.

Scram, I wish you'd stay in the office when I'm out on a caper, so I'd have somebody to talk to when the script calls for the phone-in-the-car bit.

I can't hear you. I think my cuff link blew a fuse!

Nice going, Honey! But how did you know that the Dispatcher was a money?

I just heard him announce that Flight 16 was running late due to engine trouble. Nobody who ever worked for an Airline would ever admit a thing like that!

Speaking on behalf of an Unfriendly Foreign Government, may I carry your bag?

Somebody must have pulled the old "Suitcase Switch", Scram. All we were carrying when we started out was our client's laundry.

Quite so, my dear. But you foolishly neglected to notice that the Fruit of the Loom trademark on one of the pair of shorts has the secret formula for Nerve Gas cleverly coded in apples and cherries.

National flies 8 Non-Stop Jets daily to Houston. Welcome aboard!

I'll give you the escape plan by speaking into the tiny transmitter cleverly hidden beneath my lipstick. Listen closely...

I'll try... but the tiny receiver cleverly hidden underneath my ear wax is tuned in to the Lakers' basketball game. So what's the plan... assuming that Baylor hits both free throws?

The same plan we use every week. Let the camera zoom in for a close-up of the burning fuse... then cut away for the first commercial break!

That's good thinking. We'll leave ourselves in deadly peril and hope that the idiots watching will stick around to see how we get out of it...

Friends! Show me a hat that combines cool scalp comfort with the rich feeling of natural felt... and I'll eat my filter cigarette!

How did we escape from the deadly peril we were in at the end of the first act? I didn't think there was any way out of it.

There wasn't. That's why the writers had it happen during the commercial.

And now we're chasing that mail truck because the stolen suitcase is inside, huh?

Of course not. You know the second act always begins with a chase sequence down a narrow mountain road. Can I help it if nobody uses these lousy narrow mountain roads anymore except us and the mailmen?

Honestly, Aunt Nag, I don't understand why two Private Detectives couldn't handle a simple job like putting a suitcase on an airplane!

They bungle everything they do so they can get into an argument over whose fault it is. It's our clever way of keeping a love interest from developing that might interfere with the plot.

Pretty smart. Now, all you need is a plot not to interfere with.

I'll figure out something. Don't forget, I learned all the tricks from my late father, who was also a Private Detective and from whom I inherited the agency.

How could I forget? We have to mention your late father in every episode to explain how a beautiful girl like you is a Private Eye. I just wish we didn't have to keep him here in the office like this.

That man at the bar! Isn't he one of the no-goodniks who tried to rub us out at the airport?

How should I know? All evil Orientals in flowered kimonos look alike to me!

It's still a great spot for me to use the "tiny-radio-transmitter-in-the-Martini-olive" gimmick. The alternate co-sponsors love that one.

Naturally. The alternate co-sponsors are the Tiny Radio Transmitter Co., and the National Martini Olive Growers Association.

American girls are very strange. You say nothing to me but "Testing -1-2-3-4-5"!

What's so strange about that? You know a better way to make sure an olive is working? Now about that missing suitcase...

Is safely hidden. But maybe I tell you where, for two reasons: One, you have irresistible charm that drive men to spill secrets—and two, my boys gonna blow your head off in couple of minutes anyway!

I never knew my tiny cuff link radio receiver could pick up volcano eruptions.

Clod! You're listening to his indigestion. He pulled the old "Drink-Switch" and ate my olive.

So go away and leave me listen. It's the first entertainment I've heard on this show since it started.

Why waste time going through old scripts hunting for a torture gimmick that ain't been used yet? Just let me rub 'em out quick and easy like.

And lose even more ground to "The Man From U.N.C.L.E."? Never! What's your feeling, Chief?

Hoo-boy, rotten! The way my stomach's kicking up, I feel like I swallowed a radio transmitter!

But I don't want to hunt for the missing suitcase in a spooky abandoned old warehouse, I could get killed in a place like that!

Have you got a better idea for wrapping up the caper?

Yeah! Buy our client a new suitcase!

I don't like the looks of this. Better let 'em have it with your secret tear gas earrings, Honey.

I can't. You know I never wear my good jewelry when we go into a tough neighborhood.

This is another fine mess you've gotten us into!

Please don't start an argument. Every time you do, your Aunt Nag always shows up and gets involved in it.

See? I knew it!

Of course, Honey was right to leave her good jewelry at home. But then, on the other hand...

Let's get out of here before she talks us to death!

Gee, Aunt Nag, can't you get the writers to dream up some other secret weapon for you besides a big mouth?

Yeah. How do you expect us to wipe out crime every week when you waste half the show talking?

Who cares about wiping out crime? I'm in this thing to win an Emmy!

So the crooks gave us the slip while we were giving Aunt Nag the slip. What's wrong with that? You can't win 'em all!

My late father, from whom I inherited the agency and who taught me all the tricks of—

Enough! We've already had this week's explanation of how a beautiful girl like you wound up as a Private Eye.

I know—but the premise is so absurd, I have to keep running through it so I won't forget it myself!

Scram, I realize that having you climb up the side of a building is one of our best gimmicks . . . but to get into your own apartment . . . ?

This is no gimmick. It's Doctor's orders. He told me to avoid climbing stairs.

What are you doing here? Suppose all our clients showed up to hound us whenever we botched up an assignment?

Yeah.

Boy, do I get rotten lines just 'cause I'm a Junior Partner!

You get rotten lines because you're a rotten actor. But fortunately, I'm here to help get the plot moving without you.

Then it was you who stole your own suitcase. And the men who were trying to kill us were only innocent bystanders . . .

Exactly. While you were out chasing a worthless suitcase, I was out heisting the Hope Diamond! Pretty clever, eh?

Yeah.

Gee, my last line before I get shot and it's still a nothing.

Oooh! Owww! Okay, okay! You win! I give up!

Aunt Nag!?! How did you get in on this?

I thought I heard another argument starting!

Your late father would have been proud of you, Honey. He couldn't have done a better job himself, except maybe by not chasing the wrong characters through the whole show.

Thank you, Lieutenant Stones . . . especially for not threatening to revoke my license even once this week.

No need to, Honey. The Actors' Guild just revoked your membership!

One of our greatest capers yet, Honey. But whose idea was it to call this episode "Thirty Minutes To Kill"?

The Critics'. They figured that's what the network must have had on its hands to schedule this dud of a series in the first place.

The idiots who invented "MAD Beastlies" have come up with a brand new game. Here's how it works: Take any familiar phrase or colloquial expression, give it an eerie setting so you come up with a new-type monster, and you're playing it. Mainly, you're . . .

Be the first with the latest from
OFFICIAL FRATERNITY JEWELERS

Again in 1966 only "Official Fraternity Jewelers" have been designated official fraternity jewelers for Rho Rho Rho. So beware of less expensive imitations. Remember, if it's not "Official," it isn't official!

THE OFFICIAL 1966 RHO RHO RHO PIN

Official Fraternity Jewelers proudly presents the official 1966 pin which, of course, replaces and hereby makes unofficial the cheap, unattractive 1965 pin. Featuring 875 matched pearls set in gleaming chrome plated expensive metal, the new model also contains a dazzling zirconium replica of the Hope diamond, some stuff that could pass for amethysts and a thing you'd swear was a ruby. Don't delay. If the girl of your dreams is still wearing last year's pin, she's a free agent right now! So order quickly—only $1,695.98. Insurance, 30¢ extra.

OFFICIAL RHO RHO RHO RING

There'll be no more arguments over which house on campus has the most attractive official ring once you and your cronies start sporting this newly designed beauty from Official Fraternity Jewelers. Masculine in every detail, its 85 jagged gems are mounted in a setting of copper-plated lead that both commands respect and gets the job done quickly. Only $49.99—or take advantage of our special economy offer and buy one for each hand at the bargain price of only $97.50.

OFFICIAL RHO RHO RHO PADDLE

Why waste vital energy clobbering pledges the old fashioned way when the newly designed Official Fraternity Jewelers paddle will do the job quickly — permanently — officially? Constructed of sturdy, seasoned oak with attractive cast iron spikes, the official paddle is available in either right or left handed models for maximum efficiency. Best of all, the fraternity insignia is carefully imbedded in the polished handle to prevent possible injury to the user. Now, clout with confidence for only $27.95. Chromium spikes, $10 extra.

OFFICIAL RHO RHO RHO FRATERNITY BLANKET

Dreading the stretch of military service that awaits you after graduation? So prepare now to brighten up all those dismal days with this officially sanctioned Rho Rho Rho blanket. (Officially sanctioned by the fraternity that is; not by any of the military services.) Guaranteed to keep you warm and comfy, especially if the sarge lets you take it along when you're dragged off to the guardhouse. Going fast at only $33.95 Postpaid.

Delegates analyze Progress Report from President Goodfellow at Annual Convention Banquet.

NATIONAL CONVENTION A GASSER

UNDERGRADS AND ALUMNI alike have voiced virtual unanimity in hailing the 1966 National Convention, held at Rudy's Motel and Trailer Court on the outskirts of Lubbock, Tex., during the nights of January 16, 17, and 18, as the most successful in the history of Rho Rho Rho. Only our oldest living brother, U. Q. Smallhausen (Arizona Territorial Tech '87), appeared unable to muster an adequate display of appreciation for the work of the Steering Committee in combining a disreputable convention site with the fraternity's new "Bring-Anybody-But-Your-Wife-Along-For-Companionship" policy. However, Brother Smallhausen also appeared unable to grasp the significance of anything else that occurred at the conclave, as evidenced by his brief but rambling speech at the annual banquet. In all other respects, the get-together was the most harmonious of recent years, unmarked even by the traditional pranks usually perpetrated by delegates from Alpha Omega chapter (U. of Alabama) on those from Psi Mu chapter (Tuskegee Institute).

At previous conventions, the gang from Psi Mu had often renewed the fun-filled rivalry between the two schools by showing a flagrant disregard for fraternity rules regarding use of the drinking fountain. This year, the jovial roistering was confined to a few sporadic church bombings, thanks to the keen job done by the Arrangements Committee from Chi Epsilon chapter (The F.B.I. Training School). The committee thoughtfully arranged for the Tuskegee boys to have full access to a separate but equal drinking fountain in Amarillo, less than four hundred miles from the convention site. With old inter-chapter rivalries thus resolved, the highlight of the three-day meet was the address to the annual banquet by Tri Rho Prexy Philander Goodfellow ("Make Big Money in Brake Re-lining" Home Study Course '38). President Goodfellow announced news of sweeping changes to liberalize the fraternity's by-laws by extending his term in office to 1977, boosting his annual salary to $150,000 and moving the national headquarters from the present cramped location in the abandoned fieldhouse at Central Wyoming State to a booth at Sardi's restaurant in New York City. Other proposed by-law revisions which might have opened the door to pledging of such questionable under-grads as Seventh Day Adventists, middle-of-the-road Republicans and non-holders of athletic scholarships were referred to the Un-Collegiate Activities Committee for shelving.

Serious work of convention was transacted at opening day business session. Here, two alumni officials who prefer to remain unidentified, endure tedious job of crowning the '65 P P P Queen and her Court, all local waitresses who insist upon remaining unidentified.

Address by Oldest Alum Smallhausen was one of the convention highlights. Brother Smallhausen is thought to have discussed the Free Silver Issue, his childhood spent somewhere and the threat of future Apache Indian raids.

By a unanimous voice vote, all other urgent business was re-scheduled for possible discussion either at the 1967 convention in Las Vegas or the 1968 conclave in Miami Beach. Less vital matters such as Rho Rho Rho's suspension from the dean's list of accredited fraternities on every campus in the country except Hollywood High School and the Fort Monmouth Induction Center may find a spot on the agenda in 1969.

Meantime, the delegates centered their attention on presenting this year's special recognition awards to the Dartmouth chapter for constructing its Winter Carnival display entirely out of frozen money, in denominations of ten, twenty

WHAT'S WITH THE ALUMNI?

CLEVELAND CLUB

by Fred Blunderklang

For Rho Rho Rho alums in the Cleveland area, the winter of '66 turned out much as the brothers had expected. The weather here has been rotten, and except for small late afternoon gatherings in the downtown area to gulp a few quickies before attempting the drive home in rush hour traffic, social activities were held to a minimum. Then, too, the Alumni Club burned to the ground shortly after the holidays, leaving us with no place to hold the usual gala events. Fortunately, all of the 23 who perished in the fire were bartenders, bus boys and other non-fraternity members, but otherwise, it's been a terrible winter.

It's still anybody's guess as to whether the yearly Alumni Golf Tournament will be held in '66. Most of the old crowd has moved out to the distant suburbs, and the consensus seems to be that it's ridiculous to fight your way through traffic just to play golf with a bunch of idiots you knew in college.

Old Timer's Day festivities also were to be scuttled this year, but Yancy Wayhaw (Western Reserve '03) insisted on hosting the event at his home since he was the old timer due to be honored. However, nobody else showed up, and after a late snack of cookies and warm milk, Yancy turned in about 9:30.

CHICAGO CLUB

by Knute Wanderman

Chicago Alumni Club elects new officers. The group's 800 members named Judge Marcus Tidwell to the club presidency by an impressive vote of 12,377-to-14.

The newly reorganized Chicago Alumni Club held a crooked election of officers on January 6 with Municipal Judge Marcus Tidwell, who neither belongs to Rho Rho Rho nor even attended college, being voted in as president by a landslide majority. Judge Tidwell's hand-picked slate of candidates for lesser offices received a similar overwhelming mandate at the polls. A reform ticket headed by some political science professor from the U. of Chicago whose name I've forgotten disappeared on Election Eve. Local police have promised to investigate as soon as they have finished helping Judge Tidwell throw several thousand uncounted ballots into Lake Michigan.

LAS VEGAS CLUB

by Pasquale DiFonzo

The yearly Summit Meeting of the Brotherhood was held at an unspecified location near Las Vegas in late November or early December. Delegates from as far away as Reno, Carson City and Palermo, Sicily, attended in a heart warming display of interest in alumni affairs throughout this region. Highlight of the get-together was a little ride across the desert to admire the spring flowers in bloom. Six brothers embarked on the excursion and four came back.

The sympathy of all Las Vegas area alums goes out to Vincente Mosconi (Cicero, Ill. '26) and Umberto Cichonzo (Detroit '29), both of whose fashionable establishments on the Strip were demolished by explosions during recent weeks. Following the advice of fellow brothers, neither plans to rebuild.

EASTERN INDIANA SOPH WINS ANNUAL FOUNDERS' AWARD ESSAY CONTEST

Each year, your Supreme Council presents the treasured Founder's Award, a handsomely stuffed blonde coed (and stuffed in all the right places, too!) to the under-grad member submitting the most profound essay on the subject "What Rho Rho Rho Means to Me." For 1966, the Council was almost unanimous in voting the award to Rupert "Acne" Swinehart of Gamma Eta Chapter (Eastern Indiana Abnormal) for his thoughtful entry which is reprinted in its entirety below.

Hail To Rho Rho Rho!

Far above all
other houses,
Rho Rho Rho
is tops.

We will stage
our wild carouses
'Til they call
the cops.

Join in pranks;
accost the profs with Shivs and
baseball bats.
Praise the name of
Rho Rho Rho,
Most glorious
of frats!

HERE WE GO WITH ANOTHER REVOLTING MAD FOLD-IN

Every time a new "Super Weapon" is introduced, we hear all kinds of protests. But for years, Uncle Sam has been quietly using one awesome weapon that indiscriminately destroys millions! And the only thing one hears is an occasional whimper from an individual protester like the guy below. Fold in the page as shown, and you will discover what this crippling weapon is.

Cigarette People:

They like their jobs, but none of them smoke. (They just want you to!)

Col. Kent "Lucky" Lark owns a Tobacco Plantation in Virginia

Winston Tareyton is President of a Tobacco Company in North Carolina

Paul Mall is a Cigarette Account Executive on Madison Avenue

Phil Morris is a Cigarette Wholesaler-Distributor in Illinois

Photography by IRVING SCHILD

These people depend on cigarette-smoking for their livelihoods, and all those cancer reports haven't made their lives any easier. Although they've kicked the smoking habit themselves, they wouldn't dare tell you to try. They want you to keep doing as they say, not as they do. Then, they'll be satisfied!

CIGARETTE FINKS say "Smoke! Smoke—till you have no Chest to feel!"
